From Chairman Chamberlain the sugation was advanced that using courts martial to try civilian offenders might not be constitutional. A similar sug-gestion was made by Senator Thomas (Colorado), but Mr. Bloodgood told the committee that President Lincoln had met the same argument with the promo-tion of trials by military court as a tion of trials by military court as i national necessity in a great national emergency and that an equivalent emergency existed to-day.

Berger Brought Pressure.

The witness differentiated between Victor Berger's sort of activity and belief and that of Mayor Hoan, a Socialist.
He paid a high tribute 40 the Mayor's civil administration of Milwaukee affairs, and then recited the change which had been worked upon the Mayor's attitude through the sympathetic pressure brought upon him by Victor Berger.

"At the time of the adoption of the Socialist St, Louis platform," said Mr.

"Mayor Hoan is not pro-German even to-day," said Mr. Bloodgood in describing how the Mayor had been discharged from the Council of Defence because the Socialist party in Wisconsin had given voice to a denunclation of the purposes of the United States in entering the war. At this point Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the committee, read into the record the war plank of the St. Louis focialist platform. He intimated that he was desirous of letting the committee know just where Berger and Hoan whood.

"We forwarded a request to the United that to New York city and thence through Long Island Sound. "We forwarded a request to the United that the District Attorney and also to Attorney-General Gregory asking that every signer of the platform in Milwauker be indicted," resumed Mr. Bloodgood. Childs, Sulzer and Newcomb Give No Hint of Their Defence.

William Hamlin Childs, William Sulser and Josiah Newcomb will be arraigned before Justice Goff in the Criminal branch of the Supreme Court at 10:30 o'clock to-day on the indictments returned Tuesday by the Extraordinary Grand Jury which is investigating the Fusion committee's recent campaign.

Speculation was indulged in freely around the Criminal Courts Building yesterday as to what action the defendants would take as a first step in answer to the charge that they conspired to violate the election law in falling to tell in their campaign statements, filed with the Secretary of State, about payments of $5,000 to William Suiser and $6,500 to Misha Appelbaum.

$6,500 to Misha Appelbaum.

Neither the defendants nor their counsel were willing to give away their hand yesterday. Ten days is allowed by law for the defence to file its plea after arraignment. Meantime the defence may file an application for inspection of the Grand Jury's minutes, preparatory to filing a motion to dismiss the indictment.

The Extraordinary Grand Jury yes terday heard three more witnesses in the matter of the fusion campaign and then adjourned, it is understood, until next-week. The witnesses were Misha Appel-baum, George W. Perkins and F. Carter Justice Goff will sentence to-morrow

Seek Independence.

"If this should be conceded they would immediately shift their ground a would immediately shift their ground a little nearer to independence, which they are trying by stages to secure. That is only one of the difficulties before us. Would home rule bring peace to Ireland? It would not. It would bring only the sword. If it would pacify the Nationalists and Sinn Feiners it might Nationalists and Sinn Peiners it might be defended. But it would do nothing of the kind. That is already clear. It would allenate Uister. We may regard Uister as narrow and prejudiced if we like, but let us never forget that the Uister folk have always been loyal to Britain. If the young men of Ulster go into the army and the young men from the south of Ireland do not go into the army what would be our position?

"Have we any more reason to trust the Sinn Feiners now than we had two years ago? If we saw the alightest hope of success, or the slightest evi-dence of any real desire to help free the dence of any real desire to help free the world from the German menace, we might welcome home rule, or home anything else with open arms, but the Irish demands she like the mirage of the desert. Whenever you think you are approaching them they recede into the distance. Our advice to the Government is to devote all of its energies to the prosecution of the war and not waste time running after a mirage. "Home Rule will solve nothing. It will not satisfy the Sinn Feiners, the Nationalists or the Ulstermen. The Sinn Feiners regard it as a bribe, and, spit-Feiners regard it as a bribe, and, spitting on it in advance, the Nationalists are treating the proposal with contempt. Ulster looks upon it as a betrayal.

OTTAWA, April 17.—Lord Derby, Sec-reary of State for War, replying in the man power debate in the House of Lords for the Government, emphasized the gravity of the present situation, according to Reuter's London correspond ent.
